

Dear Room 11 Parents,

I hope you enjoyed the extended weekend! There was a little sun to savor!

I also hope that you received a progress report card on Thursday (hand-delivered). Everyone is most definitely growing and learning in every area – socially, emotionally, and academically. We still have a few things to work on!

In Science, the students have finished studies of Sound and Light and are now focusing on Pacific Coastal Tide Pools. They are studying one animal at a time, researching information, sharing their findings with the class and then writing a research paper. They are also making each animal, using materials provided in the classroom. More news to come!

We are moving into informational non-fiction reading and writing. When you read non-fiction with your child, please point out text features, which we are studying in class: heading, subheading, table of contents, index, glossary, captions, fonts (bold, italics, highlight), diagrams, labels, maps, photos, graphs, etc.

Don't forget our KIDDO Music Performance with all of the First Graders in the auditorium this Tuesday, March 12th, from 8:35-9:30 AM. It's an opportunity to get a taste of your child's music program with Lori Adessa. I hope you can make it. Go early to get a good seat!

Have fun with the tide pool hats. Remember, they are not due until March 21st, so take your time and enjoy!

Thank you!

Ro
